

Sue Wilcox is an economist and entrepreneur. She has assisted and/or co-founded several start-up biotechnology companies and is active in financial analysis and investing. She has played a volunteer leadership role in various charity and educational organizations including the Technology Management Program at UCSB and the PKU Action Group at the University of Washington. Sue previously served as an adjunct professor of economics at Pepperdine University and worked ten years for Atlantic Richfield Company in various planning and financial analysis functions. Sue received her Ph.D. and M.A. degrees in Economics and B.A. in Mathematics at the University of California, Santa Barbara.